§ 8604. [7232] Common law offenses: Imprisonment for nonpayment of fine. All offenses recognized by the common law as crimes and not herein enumerated are punishable, in case of felony, by imprisonment in the state prison for a term not less than one year nor more than five years; and in case of misdemeanors, by imprisonment in the county jail for a term not exceeding six months or less than one month, or by fine not exceeding $500, or both such fine and imprisonment. Application to commission cities: Recall is the exclusive remedy for the removal of officers in cities adopting the commission form of government (See § 4251. The adoption of said form of government has the effect of suspending the operation of this section. Hodges v. Tucker (1914) 25 I. 563, 138 P. 1139.

Fees defined: "Fees" as used in this section designates the sums authorized by law to be charged for services rendered by a public officer in the discharge of his duties as prescribed by law. McRoberts v. Hoar (1915) 28 I. 163, 152 P. 1046.

Nature of proceeding: The action provided for in this section being of a public nature and for the public good may be commenced either in the name of the state as plaintiff or in the name of the informant. The action of a district court in permitting a change of the style of the action from "state of Idaho, plaintiff," to "A. plaintiff," is error, but such error affects no substantial right of the defendant, is not prejudicial and will not be considered on appeal. Smith v. Ellis (1900) 7 I. 196; 61 P. 695. An action under this section is not a criminal proceeding and the informant may appeal under § 7152, from a judgment in favor of the officer. Ponting v. Isaman (1900) 7 I. 283, 62 P. 680. These proceedings are in the nature of a quo warranto and are quasi criminal. Daugherty v. Nagel (1915) 27 I. 511, 149 P. 729. If proceedings are brought before the term of the officer expires, the expiration of the term pending the determination of the cause does not work a dismissal of the proceeding. Ib.

A proceeding under this section while in form a civil action is, in substance and effect a criminal prosecution, and a defendant cannot under Const. I. 13, be compelled to become a witness against himself. Daugherty v. Nagel (1915) 28 I. 302, 154 P. 375.

Who may prosecute: A proceeding for the removal of a public officer need not be brought by indictment or information by the public prosecutor. Hays v. Simmons (1899) 6 I. 651, 69 P. 182. A corrupt official may be prosecuted by a private person for the acts therein specified, while prosecutions under § 8670 must be on information from the prosecuting attorney or presentment of the grand jury. Corker v. Pence (1906) 12 I. 152, 85 P. 388.

This is a penal statute intended to punish public officials for charging and collecting illegal fees, or for neglecting to perform official duties. For those offenses a public officer can be informed against and prosecuted by a private person, but no proceeding can be maintained by a private individual under this statute for any other kind of misconduct. McRoberts v. Hoar, supra.

Ground for removal: This section prescribes but two offenses for which a defendant may be removed from office. The first is the charging and collecting of illegal fees, and the second, the neglect to perform official duties pertaining to his office. Corker v. Pence, supra; Collman v. Wanamaker (1915) 27 I. 342, 149 P. 292; Collman v. Gordon (1915) 27 I. 351, 149 P. 294; McRoberts v. Hoar, supra.

When a public officer presents a claim against the county for services which he admits he has not performed, procures its allowance, and receives a county warrant covering such charge, he should be removed from office, and the penalty provided for in this section should be adjudged against him and in favor of the informant. Smith v. Ellis (1900) 7 I. 196, 61 P. 695.

Proof that a county commissioner wilfully and knowingly approved a large number of official bonds, the sureties on which were not qualified to act as such sureties, is sufficient to sustain a conviction under this section. Miller v. Smith (1900) 7 I. 204, 61 P. 824.

Same: Insufficient grounds: Charges that a county commissioner allowed illegal fees to others are proper matters for investigation by the grand jury but are not a proper subject of inquiry in a proceeding under this section to remove the commissioner from office. Ponting v. Isaman (1900) 7 I. 283, 62 P. 680.

The allowance of a claim against the county without its being accompanied by a proper voucher is not a cause for removal under the provisions of this section. Corker v. Pence (1906) 12 I. 152, 85 P. 388.

The failure to properly itemize a claim against the county is not a cause for the removal of an officer under this section. Ib.

The wilful and corrupt equalization of assessments by the county board of equalization is not ground for removal under this section, but prosecutions therefor must be conducted under § 8670. Ib.

The statute is highly penal and will not be extended to acts or omissions that do not come clearly within it. It does not include the wrongful or illegal performance of an official duty. Selling of merchandise by an officer to village does not come within the terms of this statute. Collman v. Wanamaker, supra.

An officer contracting to perform special services outside his official duties is not subject to prosecution under this section for receiving illegal fees. Such contract, however, is void ab initio, as against public policy. McRoberts v. Hoar, supra.

This section is aimed at nonfeasance and not designed to cover acts of misfeasance. Daugherty v. Nagel (1915) 28 I. 302, 154 P. 375; Corker v. Cowen (1917) 30 I. 213, 164 P. 85.

Information: An information or accusation by which an action is commenced to remove a public officer from office should charge with certainty the specific acts of omission or commission for which the removal is sought. Smith v. Ellis (1900) 7 I. 196, 61 P. 695; Miller v. Smith (1900) 7 I. 204, 61 P. 824. The allegations of an information should be made positively when the facts are of record and accessible, or are within the personal knowledge of the informant; otherwise they may be made on information and belief. Corker v. Pence, supra.

An information which charges that the defendant as county commissioner, charged and collected the per diem and mileage for services rendered by him in viewing roads and bridges, that he did so wilfully, knowingly and corruptly, states good cause for removal of such officer under this section and of awarding to the informant the penalty provided for. Ponting v. Isaman, supra.

An information under this section which charges the defendant with knowingly, wilfully and intentionally charging and collecting illegal fees, specifying them, or knowingly, wilfully and intentionally refusing to perform or neglecting to perform an official duty, specifying such duty, is sufficient. Corker v. Pence, supra.

Where an information charges that defendant knowingly, intentionally and illegally performed the duties of his office, the allegation is properly stricken. But the defendant is subject to prosecution under §§ 8670-82. Daugherty v. Nagel (1915) 28 I. 302, 154 P. 375.

Same: Surplus allegations: An information seeking to remove a public officer from office on the ground that he received and collected illegal fees for himself, is not vitiated by a further improper allegation of the allowance by him of illegal fees to others nor subject to demurrer for misjoinder of causes of action, but the court should strike the improper allegations from the files and proceed to hear the cause on the proper allegations of the information. Ponting v. Isaman, supra.

Defenses: Public officers are supposed to know the law under which they act and a misunderstanding as to their duty can not be set up as a defense in a proceeding under this section. Miller v. Smith, supra.

A county commissioner will not be removed from office under this section on the ground that he presented illegal claims against the county for services rendered by him, where it appears that he acted honestly and without intent to defraud the county, under the belief that the claims were legal and on advice of the courty attorney. (Quarles, C. J., dissents.) Ponting v. Isaman (1901) 7 I. 581, 65 P. 434.

This section contemplates that when illegal fees are charged and collected, or when an officer has refused or neglected to perform the official duties pertaining to his office, and those facts are properly shown to the court, the informer has made out his case. The proof of those facts is proof of the intent with which they were done, and such acts can only be excused by showing that they were done by reason of a wrongful construction of an obscure or doubtful statute, but cannot be excused by a plea of ignorance of the plain provisions of the law. Miller v. Smith, supra.

Nature of proceeding: An appeal from a final judgment in a proceeding under this section is governed by the statutes and rules of court relative to civil appeals. Worthman v. Shane, 31 I. 433, 173 P. 750.

Complaint and information defined: It is clear that the words "complaint" and "information" as used in the statute are used to represent the name of a pleading by which a criminal action is instituted in a justice's or probate court, or on which a criminal prosecution may be based in the district court; and if the words "complaint" and "information" are not meant to apply to the same thing, it may be said that "complaint" is the name given to the pleading filed by any person other than the prosecutor himself with a justice's or probate court, and that the same pleading is called "information" when the pleading is filed by the public prosecutor. S. v. Stafford (1914) 26 I. 381, 143 P. 528.

Defendant's name: A defendant may be prosecuted at a preliminary examination under his own or a fictitious name, and same does not render the examination void. If his true name is ascertained, it should be inserted. S. v. Ytursaspe (1912) 22 I. 360, 125 P. 802.

Jurisdiction of magistrates: Magistrates, as such, are given a special and fixed jurisdiction by the constitution and statutes. S. v. Raaf (1909) 16 I. 411. 416, 101 P. 747.

Same—Police judge: The jurisdiction of a police judge to try a person charged with having committed a nonindictable misdemeanor under the general laws of the state committed within the city limits, and his jurisdiction to hold preliminary examinations of persons charged with indictable misdemeanors or felonies under the general laws of the state committed within the city limits, is concurrent with that of justices of the peace and probate judges. § 8754. Form of depositions. In all cases which must afterward be investigated by the grand jury, or prosecuted by information, the examination must be taken, unless the person charged with the offense shall waive his right to such examination, and can not be unreasonably delayed by either party.

The testimony must either be reduced to writing by the magistrate or under his direction or be taken in shorthand by a stenographer and transcribed.

The deposition must state the name of the witness, his place of residence and his business or profession. It must contain the questions put to the witness and his answers thereto. If a question put be objected to on either side and overruled, or the witness declines answering it, that fact, with the ground on which the question was overruled or the answer declined, must be stated.

The evidence must be authenticated as follows:

1. If the deposition is taken in writing each answer must be distinctly read to the witness as it is taken down, and must be corrected or added to until it conforms to what he declares is the truth; it must be subscribed and sworn to by the witness, or if he refuses to sign it, his reason for refusing must be stated in writing as he gives it; or,

2. If the deposition is taken by a stenographer in shorthand it shall be transcribed by him and certified to as true and correct; and

3. Unless certified by the county stenographer, the deposition must also be signed and certified by the magistrate. [C. L. § 7576.]

Provisions mandatory: This section is mandatory in its requirements as to a preliminary examination, and the district court has no jurisdiction to try a person on information until this section is complied with. S. v. Baithwaite (1891) 3 I. 119, 27 P. 731; S. v. Yturaspe (1912) 22 I. 360, 125 P. 802; S. v. Carlson (1913) 23 I. 545, 130 P. 463.

Sufficiency of authentication: Where the record shows before whom the preliminary examination was had; the date of such examination; the presence of the defendant; the reading of the complaint to the defendant and his plea thereto; that each witness stated his name, age, residence and occupation; and contains the questions put to each witness, and the answers thereto, and each deposition is signed by the witness and has a jurat signed by the magistrate, and further shows that the depositions are the basis of the information filed by the district attorney, the law is substantially complied with although the depositions do not contain the certificate of the magistrate. S. v. Clark (1894) 4 I. 7, 35 P. 710.

This section must be substantially complied with, and the magistrate is required to make a final certificate that its requirements have been complied with. The magistrate is not required to attach a separate certificate to the testimony of each witness. S. v. Yturaspe, supra.

Where evidence is taken by the county stenographer and transcribed and certified by him the certificate of the magistrate to the testimony becomes unnecessary. (Ailshie, C. J., dissents) S. v. Carlson, supra.

Amendment of certificate: The committing magistrate may amend his certificate to the depositions with leave of court at the county seat although the county seat is outside of his precinct. S. v. McGann (1901) 8 I. 40, 66 P. 823.

§ 8755. [7577] Custody of depositions. The magistrate must keep the depositions taken on the information or on the examination until they are returned to the proper court; and must not permit them to be examined or copied by any person except a judge of a court having jurisdiction of the offense, or authorized to issue writs of habeas corpus, the attorney general, prosecuting attorney, or other prosecuting attorney, and the defendant and his counsel. [7579] Commitment: When and how made. If, however, it appears from the examination that a public offense has been committed, and there is sufficient cause to believe the defendant guilty thereof, the magistrate must indorse on the depositions an order, signed by him, to the following effect: "It appearing to me that the offense in the within depositions mentioned (or any offense, according to the fact, stating generally the nature thereof), has been committed, and that

Nature of examination: A preliminary examination is not in any sense a trial but its only purpose is to ascertain whether a crime has been committed and whether there is probable cause for believing that the accused is guilty thereof and should be tried therefor. S. v. Bond (1906) 12 I. 424, 86 P. 43.

Sufficiency of evidence: On a preliminary examination it is only necessary for the state to introduce sufficient evidence to satisfy the magistrate that a public offense has been committed and that the defendant is guilty thereof in order to justify the magistrate in holding the defendant to answer. Re Sly (1904) 9 I. 779, 76 P. 766.

In a preliminary examination the state is not bound to produce all of its evidence or to establish the guilt of the accused "beyond a reasonable doubt," and if it produces sufficient to satisfy the committing magistrate that a crime has been committed, and that there is reasonable or probable cause to believe that the petitioner committed it, it is the duty of the magistrate to hold the petitioner for trial. Re Squires (1907) 13 I. 624, 92 P. 754.

Failure to indorse commitment: The fact that the order of commitment is not indorsed on the depositions, does not deprive the same of its validity where the order is reduced to writing and entered in the official docket of the magistrate. But this requirement does not mean that an information shall be quashed or that the prosecution shall in no case be permitted to have names indorsed upon the information after the same is filed, where good cause is shown at the time the application is made why the name or names were not indorsed at the time the information was filed, or why application was not sooner made after such information was filed. S. v. Allen (1911) 20 I. 263, 117 P. 849.

Clerk must file information: It is the duty of the clerk to file an information when presented by the prosecuting attorney; the consent of the judge or court to the filing of the same need not be obtained, and an order of the court or judge directing the clerk not to file an information so presented is without jurisdiction and does not excuse the clerk from filing the same. S. v. Quarles (1907) 13 I. 252, 89 P. 636.

Endorsement of additional witnesses: It is not error to permit the prosecuting attorney to indorse the names of additional witnesses to an information after the trial jury has been empaneled, where it is shown that such witnesses were unknown to him at that time. S. v. Wilmbusse (1902) 8 I. 608, 70 P. 849; S. v. Rooke (1904) 10 I. 388, 79 P. 82. But a showing should be made by affidavit or otherwise that the names of such additional witnesses were not known to the prosecuting attorney at the time the information was filed. S. v. Crea (1904) 10 I. 88, 76 P. 1013.

If additional witnesses to those whose names are endorsed on the indictment or information are discovered during the trial, the prosecuting attorney should be required to show where he obtained the information concerning such witnesses, and, if the showing is sufficient, the court should then order the names of the witnesses placed on the indictment or information without delay. It is error to permit such additional witnesses to testify without their names being first endorsed on the indictment or information. S. v. Barber (1907) 13 I. 65, 88 P. 418.

The name of a witness may be indorsed upon an information after it is filed, where good cause is shown why it was not done before, as, by reason of the oversight and neglect of the prosecutor, and upon a showing that the defendant has not been and will not be misled or prejudiced by such failure; particularly where the court offers to grant a continuance, giving the defendant the necessary time in which to secure evidence to meet the testimony of the witness whose name is so indorsed. S. v. Allen, supra.

Witnesses in rebuttal: This section does not require the indorsement of the names of witnesses on the information that are called for the purpose of rebutting the testimony given on behalf of the defendant. S. v. Silva (1912) 21 I. 247, 120 P. 835.

§ 8811. [7657] Statement of offense charged. The offense charged in all informations shall be stated with the same fullness and precision in matters of substance as is required in indictments in like cases, and in all cases defendant or defendants shall have the same rights as to proceedings therein as he or they would have if prosecuted for the same offense upon indictment. Name of offense: Where the information incorrectly names an offense, but states special facts showing what the offense really is, the defendant is not prejudiced by the mistake in designating the offense. S. v. Curtis (1916) 29 I. 724, 161 P. 578.

make, subscribe and file with the clerk of the court a statement in writing containing his reasons, in fact and in law, for not filing an information in such case, and such statement shall be filed at and during the term of court at which the offender shall be held for his appearance: Provided, That in such case such court may examine said statement, together with the evidence filed in the case; and if, upon such examination, the court shall not be satisfied with said statement, the prosecuting attorney shall be directed by the court to file the proper information and bring the case to trial. Order for grand jury: This section authorizes a district judge sitting at chambers in one county in his district, to make an order for a grand jury in another county, and is not, because it confers such authority, in conflict with Const. I, 8, which provides that a grand jury may be summoned upon the order of the "district court." S. v. Barber (1907) 13 I. 65, 88 P. 418.

§ 8816. [7662] Preliminary examination necessary. No information shall be filed against any person for any offense until such person shall have had a preliminary examination therefor, as provided by law, before a justice of the peace, or other examining magistrate or officer, unless such person shall waive his right to such examination: Provided, That information may be filed without such examination against fugitives from justice, and any fugitive from justice against whom an information shall be filed may be demanded by the governor of this state of the executive authority of any other state or territory, or of any foreign government, in the same manner, and the same proceedings may be had thereon, as provided by law in like cases of demand upon indictment filed. Provision mandatory: This section is mandatory and one accused of crime can not be prosecuted by information until he shall have had a preliminary examination, or until he has waived his right to such examination, unless he is a fugitive from justice. S. v. Braithwaite (1891) 3 I. 119, 27 P. 731; S. v. Farris (1897) 5 I. 666, 51 P. 772.

The public prosecutor has no power to file an information against an accused person until after such person has been committed by a magistrate; and then he can file his information only for the offense for which the accused was committed. S. v. McGreevey (1909) 17 I. 453, 105 P. 1047.

Setting aside information: An information will not be set aside on the ground that the defendant had no preliminary examination as required by law where the motion is based on the fact that the witness who testified on such preliminary examination failed, on objection of counsel to answer questions incriminating her. S. v. Bond (1906) 12 I. 424, 86 P. 43.

Waiver of examination: This section authorizes the defendant to waive preliminary examination. S. v. Larkins (1897) 5 I. 200, 47 P. 945.

Allegation of examination: It is not necessary for the information to allege that the defendant has had a preliminary examination, or waived the same, but it is better practice to make such averment. S. v. Farris, supra.

Fugitive from justice: Where one of several defendants is a fugitive from justice that fact may be properly inserted in information. S. v. Curtis (1916) 29 I. 724, 161 P. 578.

INDICTMENT.

ARTICLE 1.

FINDING AND PRESENTMENT OF THE INDICTMENT.

§ 8817. [7665] Indictment: How found. An indictment can not be found without the concurrence of at least 12 grand jurors. When so found it must be indorsed, a true bill, and the indorsement must be signed by the foreman of the grand jury. [R. S. § 7665.]

Comp. leg.—Cal. Same: Pen. C. 1872, § 940; Kerr's C. ib.

Presumptions: An indictment indorsed "A true bill. A Rossi, foreman. Presented and filed in open court in presence of the grand jury," will be presumed, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, to have been found by a legal grand jury although there is no showing of the number of persons comprising the grand jury. P. v. Buchanan (1878) 1 I. 681.

§ 8818. [7666] Failure to find indictment: Return of depositions. If 12 grand jurors do not concur in finding an indictment against a defendant who has been held to answer, the depositions, if any, transmitted to them must be returned to the court, with an indorsement thereon, signed by the foreman, to the effect that the charge is dismissed. Indorsement of additional witnesses: This provision of the statute is mandatory and should be enforced at all times in prosecutions either by indictment or information, and if additional witnesses to those whose names are indorsed on the indictment or information are discovered during the trial, the prosecuting attorney should be required to show where he obtained the information concerning such witnesses and, if the showing is sufficient, the court should then order the names of the witnesses placed on the indictment or information without delay. It is error to permit such additional witnesses to testify without their names first being indorsed on the indictment or information. S. v. Barber (1907) 13 I. 65, 88 P. 418.

§ 8821. [7669] Presentment and filing of indictment. An indictment, when found by the grand jury, must be presented by their foreman, in their presence, to the court, and must be filed with the clerk. [R. S. § 7669.]

§ 8822. [7670] Indictment of defendant not in custody. When an indictment is found against a defendant not in custody, the same proceedings must be had as are described by sections 8847 to 8862, against a defendant who fails to appear for arraignment. [R. S. § 7670.]

RULES AND PLEADINGS.

Cross ref. Provisions relating to indictment apply to information: § 8812.

Common law forms abolished: This section was enacted in order to abrogate the strictness of the common law form of indictment, and it is not necessary that an indictment or information should charge the offense with all the strictness and particularity required at common law. S. v. Sly (1905) 11 I. 110, 80 P. 1125; S. v. Lundhigh (1917) 30 I. 365, 164 P. 690.

Procedure exclusive: There is no statutory authority for entertaining a demurrer to a plea of once in jeopardy, as appears from an examination of §§ 8879, 8903, 8904, and art. 1, § 7, of the constitution. S. v. Crawford, 32 I. —, 179 P. 511.

1. The title of the action, specifying the name of the court to which the indictment is presented, and the names of the parties.

2. A statement of the acts constituting the offense in ordinary and concise language, and in such manner as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended. [R. S. § 7677.]

Failure to state title: Failure to state the title of an action is not fatal. P. v. Walters (1869) 1 I. 271.

Name of offense: The offense need not be named. The facts alleged, rather than the designation of the offense, control. S. v. Mickey (1915) 27 I. 626, 150 P. 39.

Where an information incorrectly names an offense, but states special facts showing what it really is, the defendant is not prejudiced by the mistake in designation. S. v. Curtis (1916) 29 I. 724, 161 P. 578.

An information which merely names the offense without in any way stating how it was committed, or the acts committed which it is claimed consummated or culminated in the commission of the offense, is insufficient and will not serve to put the defendant upon his trial. S. v. Smith (1914) 25 I. 541, 138 P. 1107.

Indictment for murder: The failure of an indictment for murder to allege the killing to have been deliberate and premeditated is not fatal where it alleges the killing to have been done with malice aforethought. P. v. AhChoy (1870) 1 I. 317; S. v. Ellington (1895) 4 I. 529, 43 P. 60; S. v. Shuff (1903) 9 I. 115, 72 P. 664. Contra, see P. v. O'Callaghan (1886) 2 I. 156, 9 P. 414.

Order of statement immaterial: The order in which the matters required by this section appear in the indictment is immaterial, and the "conclusions" may be construed with the charging part in order to sustain the indictment. T. v. Evans (1888) 2 I. 425, 17 P. 139.

Sufficiency in general: Under this and the following sections an indictment or information which charges the accused with some crime known to the statute, committed on or about a specified date, and alleges that the unlawful act was done wilfully, unlawfully and feloniously, and indicates the particular crime charged, with the time, place, circumstances and conditions of the same, is sufficient. S. v. Steers (1906) 12 I. 174, 85 P. 104.

An indictment is sufficient if it describes the offense in the language of the statute by which it is created or defined and the words employed make the charge clear to the common understanding. All that is necessary is that on its face, it is sufficient to advise the defendant of the nature of the charge against him, and that it describes the offense with such particularity as to serve as a shield in case of a second prosecution for the same offense. S. v. O'Neil (1913) 24 I. 582, 135 P. 60; S. v. Andrus (1916) 29 I. 1, 156 P. 421; S. v. Lottridge (1916) 29 I. 53, 155 P. 487; S. v. Rogers (1917) 30 I. 259, 163 P. 912; S. v. Conclusion: An information charging the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors which concludes with the clause, "Contrary to the form, force and effect of the statutes in such cases made and provided and against the peace and dignity of the state of Idaho," is a sufficient allegation that the liquor was sold or disposed of contrary to law, whether it be the local option law or any other public statute. § 8828. [7680] Indictment by fictitious name. When a defendant is indicted by a fictitious or erroneous name, and in any stage of the proceedings his true name is discovered, it must be inserted in the subsequent proceedings, referring to the fact of his being indicted by the name mentioned in the indictment. Separate counts: The rule established by this section is not violated by setting forth the same offense in different forms and under different counts. T. v. Guthrie (1888) 2 I. 432, 17 P. 39.

In an information charging murder in the first degree, the prosecutor may charge the same offense in two counts, one count alleging the murder to have been committed wilfully, deliberately and with malice aforethought, and the other count charging that the murder was committed in the perpetration of, or attempt to perpetrate, robbery. S. v. Gruber (1911) 19 I. 692, 115 P. 1.

§ 8830. [7682] Allegation as to time. The precise time at which the offense was committed need not be stated in the indictment; but it may be alleged to have been committed at any time before the finding thereof, except where the time is a material ingredient in the offense. [R. S. § 7682.]

But this case was overruled on this point, and it was held that an information for larceny which alleges the title to the thing stolen to be in B is supported by proof of property in the firm of B & J. S. v. Ireland (1904) 9 I. 686, 75 P. 257.

Variance: The fact that an information charges murder to have been committed on one whose true name is unknown while the evidence showed the killing of a person of known name, is not a fatal variance. S. v. St. Clair (1898) 6 I. 109, 53 P. 1.

§ 8832. [7684] Construction of words. The words used in an indictment are construed in their usual acceptance in common language, except such words and phrases as are defined by law, which are construed according to their legal meaning. [R. S. § 7684.]

§ 8834. [7686] Sufficiency of indictment. The indictment is sufficient if it can be understood therefrom:

1. That it is entitled in a court having authority to receive it, though the name of the court be not stated.

2. That it was found by a grand jury of the county in which the court was held.

3. That the defendant is named, or, if his name cannot be discovered that he is described by a fictitious name, with a statement that his true name is to the jury unknown.

4. That the offense was committed at some place within the jurisdiction of the court, except where the act, though done without the local jurisdiction of the county, is triable therein.

5. That the offense was committed at some time prior to the time of finding the indictment.

6. That the act or omission charged as the offense is clearly and distinctly set forth in ordinary and concise language, without repetition, and in such a manner as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended.

7. That the act or omission charged as the offense is stated with such a degree of certainty as to enable the court to pronounce judgment upon conviction, according to the right of the case. [R. S. § 7686.]

Omission of title: Failure of the indictment to state the title of the action is not fatal. P. v. Walters (1869) 1 I. 271.

Indictment for murder: The failure of an indictment for murder to allege the killing to have been done deliberately and premeditatedly is not fatal where it alleges the killing to have been done with malice aforethought. P. v. Ah Choy (1870) 1 I. 317.

Information for manslaughter: Where the acts or elements which constitute the offense of involuntary manslaughter are sufficiently charged to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended, the information is sufficient even though it fails to allege that the defendant is charged with involuntary manslaughter, and makes the general charge of manslaughter. The facts alleged, rather than the designation of the offense, control. S. v. Mickey (1915) 27 I. 626, 150 P. 39.

Clerical errors: A clerical error charging the commission of the crime on November 15th, 1905, whereas the information was filed on March 15, 1905, is not fatal where it alleges that, prior to the filing thereof, the defendant had had a preliminary examination, and otherwise identifies the date intended to be charged as November 15, 1904. S. v. Roland (1905) 11 I. 490, 83 P. 337.

SETTING ASIDE THE INDICTMENT.

§ 8863. [7730] Grounds for setting aside indictment. The indictment must be set aside by the court in which the defendant is arraigned, upon his motion, in either of the following cases:

1. When it is not found, indorsed and presented as prescribed in this code.

2. When the names of the witnesses examined before the grand jury, or whose depositions may have been read before them, are not inserted at the foot of the indictment, or indorsed thereon.

3. When a person is permitted to be present during the session of the grand jury, and when the charge embraced in the indictment is under consideration, except as provided in article 3 of chapter 318.

4. When the defendant had not been held to answer before the finding of the indictment, on any ground which would have been good ground for challenge, either to the panel or to any individual grand juror. [R. S. § 7730.]

Time for motion: A motion to quash an indictment must be made before demurrer or plea. P. v. Butler (1869) 1 I. 231.

Grounds of motion: The statute in defining and allowing the grounds stated in this section for setting aside an indictment excludes all others; therefore the failure of the district attorney to sign a bill of indictment as required by Laws 3d Terr. Ses. c. 187, § 3, is not ground for setting aside an indictment. Ib.

This clause means that no person except a member of the grand jury must be present and does not refer to members of the panel, and an indictment will not be set aside because of the presence of a grand juror who was a witness against the defendant. T. v. Staples (1891) 3 I. 35, 26 P. 166.

Requisites of motion: A motion to set aside an indictment on the ground that certain of the grand jurors had formed an unqualified opinion as to the guilt of the defendant prior to the examination by them of the case as grand jurors, should be supported by proof, at least to the extent of the oath of the defendant, and when not so supported the court can not be required to summon such grand jurors into court to be examined on the charges so made against them. S. v. Hardy (1895) 4 I. 478, 42 P. 507.

Waiver of defects: An objection to an information on the ground that the depositions taken before the committing magistrate on the preliminary examination are not certified by the magistrate as required by law, is waived, unless raised on motion to quash or to set aside the information before plea. S. v. Clark (1894) 4 I. 7, 35 P. 710.

An irregularity in failing to verify an information can be taken advantage of by the defendant only by motion to set aside the information. Re Marshall (1899) 6 I. 516, 56 P. 470.

A defendant who is under arrest and appears in open court with his counsel at the time the grand jury is impaneled and declines to challenge the panel or any of the individual jurors can not thereafter move to set aside the indictment on any ground which would have been cause for challenge to the grand jury. S. v. Corcoran (1900) 7 I. 220, 61 P. 1034.

§ 8864. [7731] Waiver of objections. If the motion to set aside the indictment is not made the defendant is precluded from afterward taking the objections mentioned in the last section. [R. S. § 7731.]

§ 8865. [7732] Hearing and disposition of motion. The motion must be heard at the time it is made, unless for cause the court postpones the hearing to another time. If the motion is denied, the defendant must immediately answer the indictment, either by demurring or pleading thereto. If the motion is granted, the court must order that the defendant, if in custody, be discharged therefrom; or, if admitted to bail, that his bail be exonerated; or, if he has deposited money instead of bail, that the same be refunded to him, unless it directs that the case be resubmitted to the same or another grand jury. REMOVAL OF THE ACTION BEFORE TRIAL.

§ 8888. [7768] Ground for removal. A criminal action, prosecuted by indictment, may be removed from the court in which it is pending, on the application of the defendant, on the ground that a fair and impartial trial can not be had in the county where the indictment is pending. [R. S. § 7768.]

Discretion of court: The refusal of a change of venue is largely discretionary with the trial court, and the refusal of such change is not ground for a reversal of the conviction, where it manifestly appears that the defendant had a fair and impartial trial, and that no trouble was experienced in securing a jury. S. v. Gilbert (1902) 8 I. 346, 69 P. 62.

Conflicting affidavits: An application for change of venue on the ground of popular prejudice was properly denied where the affidavits as to whether the defendant could have a fair trial or not were about equally divided. S. v. Rooke (1904) 10 I. 388, 79 P. 82.

Appeal from justice court not transferable: A district court to which an appeal in a misdemeanor case has been taken from a judgment of a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction to transfer the case for trial to the district court of another county. S. v. Cowen (1916) 29 I. 783, 162 P. 674.

§ 8889. [7769] Form of application: Hearing in absence of defendant. The application must be made in open court and in writing, verified by the affidavit of the defendant, a copy of which must be served upon the prosecuting attorney at least one day before the application is made. Whenever the affidavit shows that the defendant can not safely appear in person to make the application, because the popular excitement against him is so great as to endanger his personal safety, and such statement is sustained by other testimony, the application may be made by counsel, and heard and determined in the absence of the defendant, though he is indicted for felony, and has not at the time of such application been arrested, or given bail, or been arraigned, or pleaded or demurred to the indictment. Counter affidavits: The prosecution may file counter affidavits in opposition to those filed by the defendant. S. v. Reed (1894) 3 I. 754, 35 P. 706.

Presumptions: The fact that affidavits in support of a motion for a change of venue filed at one term of the court showed a condition of affairs under which the defendant could not procure an impartial trial, does not raise a presumption that the same condition of affairs continues at a succeeding term to which the case was adjourned without objection, and at which the motion was renewed. Ib.

§ 8890. [7770] Order of removal. If the court is satisfied that the representation of the defendant is true, an order must be made for the removal of the action to the proper court of a county free from a like objection. [R. S. § 7770.]

§ 8891. [7771] Transfer of cause. The order of removal must be entered upon the minutes, and the clerk must immediately make out and transmit to the court to which the action is removed a certified copy of the order of removal, record, pleadings and proceedings in the action, including the undertakings for the appearance of the defendant and of the witnesses. Plea of guilty: If an accused person, with full knowledge of his constitutional right to a trial by jury, enters a plea of guilty and presents no issue of fact for trial, there can be no trial; in that event the conviction of the accused, by his own admission, takes the place of the verdict of a jury. POSTPONEMENT OF TRIAL.

§ 8910. [7795] Trial may be postponed for cause. When an indictment is called for trial, or at any time previous thereto, the court may, upon sufficient cause, direct the trial to be postponed to another day of the same or of the next term. [R. S. § 7795.]

Right to postponement: Defendant not entitled to continuance as a matter of right, but must make statutory showing. S. v. Fleming (1910) 17 I. 471, 482, 106 P. 305.

Discretion of court: An application for continuance is addressed to the sound judicial discretion of the court, which will not be reviewed unless abused. T. v. Guthrie (1888) 2 I. 432, 17 P. 39; S. v. St. Clair (1898) 6 I. 109, 53 P. 1; S. v. Rice (1901) 7 I. 762, 66 P. 87; S. v. Rooke (1904) 10 I. 388, 79 P. 82; S. v. Absence of witnesses: To entitle the defendant to a postponement of the trial on the ground of the absence of a witness, he must show what he expects to prove by such witness; that such evidence is material to his defense; that such evidence is true; that the witness is not absent by his procurement or with his consent; that he has used due diligence to procure the presence of said witness at the trial, and failed to do so; and that there is a reasonable probability that he can and will procure the attendance of said witness at the next term of the court. S. v. Corcoran (1900) 7 I. 220, 61 P. 1034.

It is not error to overrule an application for a continuance on the ground of absence of witnesses, where it is not shown that the evidence of the absent witness can be furnished at a future term of court, or what it is proposed to prove by the absent witnesses. S. v. Rooke (1904) 10 I. 388, 79 P. 82; S. v. Allen (1911) 20 I. 263, 117 P. 849.

There is no abuse of discretion in denying an application for continuance where the party applying fails to show that if the continuance should be granted he could procure material evidence tending to establish his defense, which he could not reasonably expect to produce unless such continuance should be granted. S. v. Gruber (1911) 19 I. 692, 115 P. 1.

Same: Admission of showing: It is not error to deny a continuance in a criminal case where the prosecuting attorney admits that if the witnesses were present they would testify as set forth in the affidavit for a continuance. S. v. St. Clair (1898) 6 I. 109, 53 P. 1.

Impaneling a jury: This in connection with other relevant sections of the criminal practice act contemplate that in trials for murder, after a jury has been called, he shall remain under the control of the court until he is rejected as incompetent; or, if accepted, until the termination of the trial. This justifies the practice of requiring the parties to exercise all their challenges, either peremptory or for cause, before another juror is called. But it is proper, in the discretion of the court, to modify this practice by permitting the clerk to draw 12 names from the box before any challenges are interposed, and after these are passed upon for cause, to allow others to be drawn to take the place of those excused, and thus permit the defendant to pass upon and examine all those called before exercising his peremptory challenges. But in case of recess or adjournment, the peremptory challenges should be exercised or waived upon all those passed for cause, and those accepted should be sworn to try the cause, and should remain under the control of the court. 2. For the existence of a state of mind on the part of the juror in reference to the case, or to either of the parties, which, in the exercise of a sound discretion on the part of the trier, leads to the inference that he will not act with entire impartiality, and which is known in this code as actual bias. § 8930. [7834] Grounds of challenge for implied bias. A challenge for implied bias may be taken for all or any of the following causes and for no other:

1. Consanguinity or affinity within the fourth degree to the person alleged to be injured by the offense charged, or on whose complaint the prosecution was instituted, or to the defendant.

2. Standing in the relation of guardian and ward, attorney and client, master and servant, or landlord and tenant, or being a member of the family or boarder or lodger of the defendant, or of the person alleged to be injured by the offense charged or on whose complaint the prosecution was instituted, or in his employment on wages.

3. Being a party adverse to the defendant in a civil action or having complained against or been accused by him in a criminal prosecution.

4. Having served on the grand jury which found the indictment, or on a coroner's jury which inquired into the death of a person whose death is the subject of the indictment.

5. Having served on a trial jury which has tried another person for the offense charged in the indictment.

6. Having been one of a jury formerly sworn to try the same charge, and whose verdict was set aside or which was discharged without a verdict after the case was submitted to it, or being a witness for the prosecution, or subpoenaed as such.

7. Having served as a juror in a civil action brought against the defendant for the act charged as an offense.

8. Having formed or expressed an unqualified opinion or belief that the prisoner is guilty or not guilty of the offense charged.

9. If the offense charged be punishable with death, the entertaining of such conscientious opinions as would preclude his finding the defendant guilty; in which case he must neither be permitted nor compelled to serve as a juror. [R. S. § 7834.]

Form of challenge: The specific ground upon which a challenge for implied bias is made must be stated, but failure to have such grounds stated, unless prejudicial to the defendant, is not ground for reversal. S. v. Gordon (1897) 5 I. 297, 48 P. 1061.

Grounds of challenge: When the relation of client and attorney exists between one of the jurors and defendant's attorney, it is proper for the court to sustain a challenge for implied bias. S. v. McGraw (1899) 6 I. 635, 59 P. 178.

Insufficient ground for challenge: Where a juror has been summoned upon an open venire by the coroner of the county, and it appears that he had been summoned upon a previous open venire by the sheriff of the county, which previous panel had been quashed by the court for implied bias of the sheriff, such facts are not ground of challenge to the individual juror for implied bias under this section. Prejudice against attorney: Prejudice of a juror against the attorney for a defendant in a criminal case is not ground of challenge for actual bias. S. v. Gordon (1897) 5 I. 297, 48 P. 1061.

Grounds: To sustain a challenge for implied bias, one or more of the causes set forth in § 8930 must be stated. But while the court does not err in overruling the challenge, where that is not done, it ought, where the defendant is charged with a serious offense and where great prejudice may exist against him, to be very careful, in the selection of a jury, to reject all persons who are actually biased and prejudiced in the matter. THE TRIAL.

§ 8941. [7855] Order of trial. The jury having been impaneled and sworn, the trial must proceed in the following order:

1. If the indictment is for a felony, the clerk must read it and state the plea of the defendant to the jury. In all other cases this formality may be dispensed with.

2. The prosecuting attorney or other counsel for the people must open the cause and offer the evidence in support of the indictment.

3. The defendant or his counsel may then open the defense and offer his evidence in support thereof.

4. The parties may then respectively offer rebutting testimony only, unless the court for good reason, in furtherance of justice, permit them to offer evidence upon their original case.

5. When the evidence is concluded, unless the case is submitted to the jury on either side, or on both sides, without argument, the prosecuting attorney or other counsel for the people must open, and the prosecuting attorney may conclude, the argument.

6. The judge must then charge the jury if requested by either party; he may state the testimony and declare the law, but must not charge the jury in respect to matters of fact; such charge must be reduced to writing before it is given, unless by the mutual consent of the parties it is given orally. Statement of plea: The reading of the indictment and statement of the plea to the jury is a formality, and the failure to perform these actions is not fatal to a conviction in the absence of prejudice. P. v. Ah Hop (1878) 1 I. 698.

The failure of the clerk to read the indictment or information, and to state the defendant's plea to the jury in a felony case is reversible error. S. v. Chambers (1904) 9 I. 673, 75 P. 274; S. v. Crea (1904) 10 I. 88, 76 P. 1013. But where the plea of the defendant was in fact stated to the jury and the stenographer's notes do not show that fact it may be shown by affidavit. S. v. Lancaster (1904) 10 I. 410, 78 P. 1081.

Where the record is silent as to whether the indictment and plea have been read as required by this section, it will be presumed that the law was complied with. S. v. Lottridge (1916) 29 I. 53, 155 P. 487.

In the separate trial of one of several defendants, a general objection to reading the indictment is insufficient to raise the question of the propriety of reading a specific clause respecting the other defendants. S. v. Curtis (1916) 29 I. 724, 161 P. 578.

Swearing of witnesses: It is not error to swear all the witnesses for the prosecution in a body at the commencement of the trial. S. v. Rooke (1904) 10 I. 388, 79 P. 82.

Closing of argument: The district attorney is not required to close the argument in person, but that duty may be left to assistant counsel. S. v. Williams (1895) 4 I. 502, 42 P. 511.

Rebuttal: By the provisions of subd. 4, a large discretion is vested in the trial court, and unless grossly abused its exercise will not be interfered with upon appeal. S. v. Waln (1905) 14 I. 1, 4, 80 P. 221.

Instructions: The court in charging the jury may state the testimony and declare the law. P. v. Bernard (1886) 2 I. 193, 10 P. 30.

This section does not conflict with § 8963 which prohibits the court from charging with respect to matters of fact; the court is the judge of whether the evidence is sufficient to warrant a conviction. (Dis. op.) T. v. Neilson (1890) 2 I. 614, 23 P. 537.

Where the charge is given orally under subd. 6, the record must show that mutual consent was given to an oral charge. T. v. McKern (1891) 3 I. 15, 26 P. 123.

It is a violation of subd. 6 for the court to instruct the jury to acquit; that is a charge as to matters of fact. S. v. Peck (1908) 14 I. 712, 95 P. 515.

Same: Reduction to writing: The act of the stenographic reporter in reducing the charge to writing as it is given to the jury by the court is a sufficient compliance with this section. S. v. Preston (1894) 4 I. 215, 38 P. 694.

Where the court gives his instructions in writing, the conviction will not be reversed because the court makes a verbal answer to a further question asked him by a juror as to the effect to be given to certain testimony. S. v. McGann (1901) 8 I. 40, 66 P. 823.

It will be presumed, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, that the defendant assented to the granting of an oral instruction, and if he desires to raise any question of error in not reducing the charge to writing, the bill of exceptions should show that his charge was given orally without his consent. S. v. Preston, supra.

sound discretion of the court, the order prescribed in the last section may be departed from. [R. S. § 7856.]

Accomplice defined: In order to make a person an accomplice in the commission of a crime, some aiding, abetting or actual encouragement by such person must be shown. Mere presence at the plotting of a crime or silent acquiescence in its commission is not, in the absence of a legal duty, to act, sufficient to constitute one an accomplice. The failure to disclose known facts regarding the commission of a crime does not render one having such knowledge an accomplice of the person who committed the crime. S. v. Grant (1914) 26 I. 189, 140 P. 959; S. v. Altwater (1916) 29 I. 107, 111, 157 P. 256.

Jury to determine who is accomplice: When the question as to whether a witness is an accomplice arises it is the duty of the trial court to instruct the jury on the law of accomplices, and leave the question as to whether or not any witness is an accomplice in the commission of the offense charged, for the decision of the jury as a matter of fact, unless it appear without substantial conflict in the testimony that such witness was an accomplice. S. v. Grant, supra.

Sufficiency of corroboration: The corroborating evidence must be upon some material fact or circumstance which, standing alone and independent of the evidence of the accomplice, tends to connect the defendant with the commission of the offense. S. v. Knudtson (1905) 11 I. 524, 83 P. 226; S. v. Bond (1906) 12 I. 424, 86 P. 43. But it is not necessary that the accomplice be corroborated in every detail. N. D. Similar: C. Cr. P. § 10855.

Presence of defendant on view: Where the defendant requests a view of the premises where the crime was committed, the fact that the defendant does not accompany the jury upon such view, is not ground for a new trial in the absence of any request that the defendant should be permitted to accompany them. S. v. Reed (1894) 3 I. 754, 35 P. 706. But doubts are expressed as to the correctness of this ruling in S. v. McGinnis (1906) 12 I. 336, 85 P. 1089. And in case a view is ordered it is error to deny the defendant the right to be present at the view if he requests such right either in person or by counsel. Ib.

It is now settled that whatever rights a defendant may have under this section may be waived by his failure to make timely objection. S. v. Moon (1911) 20 I. 202, 117 P. 757, Ann. Cas. 1913A 724; S. v. Baker (1916) 28 I. 727, 156 P. 103.

Time of view: No precise time is fixed by the statute when the view shall be had. S. v. Moon, supra. This section contemplates a view prior to the argument of counsel and the giving of instructions by the court. It was not intended by this section to give the jury permission to view the premises after the cause had been submitted to them. S. v. Baker (1916) 28 I. 727, 156 P. 103.

Extraneous evidence: Where evidence has been improperly received by a jury engaged in a view under this section the presumption arises, in the case of one being prosecuted for the commission of an offense, that the jury has been prejudicially influenced by receiving evidence other than a view of the premises. Ib.

Waiver: Objection to a view of the premises by the jury must be made at the time such view is requested, else it will be waived. Timely objection must be made if advantage is to be taken of the absence of the trial judge at the view. S. v. Moon, supra.

While it is improper to allow the jury to view the premises after the charge to the jury, yet when the defendant expressly consents to such view, and with his counsel accompanied the jury on such view, he thereby waives such irregularity, and in effect joins in the request. S. v. Baker, supra.

§ 8965. [7879] Disclosure of facts known by juror. If a juror has any personal knowledge respecting a fact in controversy in a cause, he must declare the same in open court during the trial. If, during the retirement of the jury, a juror declares a fact which could be evidence in the cause, as of his own knowledge, the jury may return into court. In either of these cases, the juror making the statement must be sworn as a witness and examined in the presence of the parties. [R. S. § 7879.]

In case the court orders the jury to be kept together the sheriff must provide a suitable place for the board and lodging of the jury, at the expense of the county, and at each recess and adjournment the officer must be sworn to keep the jury together until the next meeting of the court; to suffer no person to speak to or communicate with them, or either of them, nor to do so himself, on any subject connected with the trial, and to return them into court at the next meeting thereof. In all trials for murder the jury must be kept together. [R. S. § 7880.]

Separation of jury: Where the defendant in a murder case shows the jury have separated in violation of the statute, he has made a sufficient prima facie showing to entitle him to a new trial and to shift the burden on to the state of showing clearly and beyond a reasonable doubt that nothing transpired during the separation, or on account of the separation, that did or could prejudice the defendant, and if the state succeeds in making such a showing, a new trial should be denied. S. v. Sly (1905) 11 I. 110, 80 P. 1125.

§ 8967. [7881] Admonishment of jury on adjournments. The jury must also, at each adjournment of the court, whether permitted to separate or kept in charge of officers, be admonished by the court that it is their duty not to converse among themselves or with anyone else on any subject connected with the trial, or to form or express any opinion thereon until the cause is finally submitted to them. [R. S. § 7881.]

Presumption of compliance: In the absence of any showing to the contrary, it will be presumed that the court charged the jury as provided in this section. S. v. O'Brien (1907) 13 I. 112, 88 P. 425.

Failure to instruct: Request necessary: In felony cases the court should instruct the jury in writing on all the material issues of the case, but his failure to do so is not reversible error in the absence of a request for the charge, and a notation of the refusal thereof. S. v. Harness (1904) 10 I. 18, 76 P. 788.

Notation on instructions given and refused: The court should not indicate to the jury what instructions are given of his own motion, or at the instance of counsel for plaintiff or defendant. S. v. Marren (1910) 17 I. 766, 107 P. 993.

Authorities should not be cited at the foot of instructions given to the jury, such citations should be detached before the instructions are handed to the jury to be taken to the jury room. S. v. Sage (1912) 22 I. 489, 495-6, 126 P. 403, Ann. Cas. 1914B 251.

Where the jury could not, upon the record, have found any other verdict than that of guilty, the giving of an instruction upon which there appeared at the end the word "guilty," instead of the word "given," followed by the name of the trial judge, is not reason for reversal. S. v. Grigg (1914) 25 I. 411, 138 P. 506. (Ailshie, C. J. dissents.) A judge does not comply with the statute by simply making a scroll or pencil mark across the face of disapproved instructions. S. v. Buster (1915) 28 I. 110, 152 P. 196.

Character of instructions: The court in instructing the jury should state propositions of law concisely and intelligibly so that the jury may without indulging in any fine-spun theories, understand what the law applicable to the facts of the particular case is. S. v. Marren, supra.

It is not proper for the court to enter into a discussion as to the weight of any specific class of evidence or the effect which should be given to the evidence by the jury as compared with any other class of evidence. Ib.

It is the duty of the court in its instructions to state the rules of law applicable to the evidence and not to give a dissertation on what some may conceive to be the policy of the law. S. v. Reel (1911) 19 I. 463, 465, 113 P. 721.

Under the provisions of this section it is the duty of the court to instruct the jury upon the law of the case, but it is equally the duty of the jury to determine for itself what facts have been proved, and of this they are the sole judges. It is not the duty of the court in instructing the jury to draw inferences from the facts, or to point out to the jury what inferences they might or could draw from such facts. S. v. Jones (1916) 28 I. 428, 154 P. 378.

Nonprejudicial erroneous instruction: Even though an instruction is erroneous and ordinarily the error would be material, yet if the evidence of the defendant's guilt is such as ordinarily produces moral certainty, or conviction in an unprejudiced mind, and the result would not have been different had the instruction been omitted, the case will not be reversed because of such erroneous instruction. S. v. Brill (1912) 21 I. 269, 121 P. 79.

Taking exhibits to jury room: (Before amendment.) No other exhibits than those mentioned in this section should be sent to the jury room; thus, in a prosecution for murder, it was held error to permit the jury to take with them the clothes of the deceased, straps, a piece of a mug, and a revolver. Verdict against joint defendants: Where two defendants are jointly charged and tried for grand larceny, verdicts brought in separately against each and entitled as if the defendant named in each verdict were the only defendant on trial, are not void for uncertainty, and are sufficient to authorize judgment and sentence. § 8991. [7920] Special verdict defined. A special verdict is that by which the jury finds the facts only, leaving the judgment to the court. It must present the conclusions of fact as established by the evidence, and not the evidence to prove them, and these conclusions of fact must be so presented as that nothing remains to the court but to draw conclusions of law upon them. [R. S. § 7920.]

Question for jury: The degree of crime is a question for the jury to determine from the evidence, and it is not essential that the words fixing the degree of murder should be set forth in the indictment in order to make the indictment good for murder in the first degree. (P. v. O'Callaghan, 2 I. 156, 9 P. 414, overruled.) S. v. Ellington (1895) 4 I. 529, 43 P. 60.

Under this and the following sections the court must leave to the jury, in a prosecution for murder, the duty of determining the degree and grade of the offense; whether murder in the first or second degree, or manslaughter; the court can not rule as a matter of law, that a certain kind of killing, such as by poison, is murder in the first degree, and instruct the jury that they must find the defendant guilty of that grade of offense or acquit him. The fact that the jury finds the defendant guilty of a lower grade of offense than that established by the evidence, is not ground for a reversal of the conviction. S. v. If the jury render a verdict which is neither general nor special, the court may direct them to reconsider it, and it can not be recorded until it is rendered in some form from which it can be clearly understood that the intent of the jury is either to render a general verdict or to find the facts specially and to leave the judgment to the court. BILLS OF EXCEPTION.

§ 9006. [7940] Exceptions to rulings during trial. On the trial of an indictment exceptions may be taken by the defendant to a decision of the court:

1. In disallowing a challenge to the panel of the jury, or to an individual juror, for implied bias.

2. In admitting or rejecting testimony on the trial of a challenge to a juror for actual bias.

3. In admitting or rejecting testimony, or in deciding any question of law not a matter of discretion, or in charging or instructing the jury upon the law on the trial of the issue. [R. C. § 7940.]

Exceptions to instructions: Instructions given by the court of its own motion must be excepted to at the trial and embodied in a bill of exceptions in order to be available on appeal. P. v. Biles (1885) 2 I. 114, 6 P. 120; S. v. Suttles (1907) 13 I. 88, 88 P. 238; S. v. O'Brien (1907) 13 I. 112, 88 P. 425; S. v. Gallagher (1908) 14 I. 656, 94 P. 581; S. v. Harris (1910) 18 I. 620, 111 P. 406.

Exceptions to sustaining challenges: This section allows exceptions only in matters of challenge based on implied or actual bias, and does not authorize an exception to an order overruling a challenge on the ground of disqualification of the juror. T. v. Evans (1890) 2 I. 651, 23 P. 232.

Necessity of bill of exceptions: The supreme court is authorized to consider the exceptions mentioned in this section, but only when those exceptions are saved and incorporated into a bill of exceptions duly settled after notice as provided by law. S. v. Smith (1897) 5 I. 291, 48 P. 1060; S. v. Peck (1908) 14 I. 712, 95 P. 515.

§ 9007. Same: Service and settlement of bill. When a party desires to have the exceptions taken at the trial settled in a bill of exceptions, the draft of a bill must be prepared by him and presented, upon notice of at least two days, to the prosecuting attorney, to the judge for settlement, within 10 days after judgment has been rendered against him, unless further time is granted by the judge or by a justice of the supreme court, or within that period the draft must be delivered to the clerk of the court for the judge. When received by the clerk he must deliver it to the judge, or transmit it to him at the earliest period practicable. When settled the bill must be signed by the judge and filed with the clerk of the court: Provided, That any party desiring to procure a review on appeal to the supreme court of any ruling of the district court made during the trial, or the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the verdict or decision, in an action or special proceeding, may, in lieu of preparing, serving and procuring the settlement of the bill of exceptions as in this article provided, procure a transcript of the testimony and proceedings, including the instructions given or refused, and exceptions thereto on the trial, and such part thereof as may be necessary. Exception to sustaining challenge: An exception to sustaining a challenge by the state for implied bias must be saved by a bill of exceptions as provided in this section. S. v. McGraw (1899) 6 I. 635, 59 P. 178.

Necessity of notice: Notice required by this section of the time that a bill of exceptions will be presented to the judge for settlement must be given to the district attorney, or on an appeal the bill of exceptions will not be considered; the record must show that all the provisions of this section have been complied with. S. v. Smith (1897) 5 I. 291, 48 P. 1060; S. v. Gordon (1897) 5 I. 297, 48 P. 1061.

Extension of time: The power vested by this section in the court or judge to extend the time in which the draft of a bill of exceptions may be served, can not be exercised by the parties by stipulation. S. v. Dupuis (1901) 7 I. 614, 65 P. 65. But if a stipulation is made and entered into between the attorneys with the knowledge and acquiescence of the court, the bill will not be stricken because not presented within the time required by the statute. § 9008. [7942] Exceptions to rulings not made during trial. Exceptions may be taken by either party to the decision of a court or judge upon a matter of law:

1. In granting or refusing a motion to set aside an indictment.
2. In allowing or disallowing a demurrer to an indictment.
3. In granting or refusing a motion in arrest of judgment.
4. In granting or refusing a motion for a new trial.

Order denying change of venue: An order denying a change of venue can not be brought before the supreme court by writ of error, but is reviewable only on appeal from the final judgment accompanied by appropriate bills of exceptions. S. v. Reed (1893) 3 I. 554, 32 P. 202.

§ 9010. [7944] Same: Settlement of bill. When a party desires to have the exceptions mentioned in the last two sections settled in a bill of exceptions, the draft of a bill must be prepared by him and presented, upon notice of at least two days to the adverse party, to the judge for settlement, within 10 days after the order or ruling complained of is made, unless further time is granted by the judge, or by a justice of the supreme court, or within that period the draft must be delivered to the clerk of the court for the judge. When received by the clerk he must deliver it to the judge, or transmit it to him at the earliest period practicable. When settled, the bill must be signed by the judge and filed with the clerk of the court. If the judge in any case refuse to allow an exception in accordance with the facts, the party desiring the bill settled may apply by petition to the supreme court to prove the same. The application may be made in the mode and manner, and under such regulations as that court may prescribe; and the bill, when proven, must be certified by the chief justice as correct, and filed with the clerk of the court in which the action was tried, and when so filed it has the same force and effect as if settled by the judge who tried the cause. If the judge who presided at the trial ceases to hold office before the bill is tendered or settled he may, nevertheless, settle such bill, or the party may, as provided in this section, apply to the supreme court to prove the same. Consideration of evidence:. Testimony embraced in a bill of exceptions may be considered only for the purpose of determining the materiality of exceptions taken to some decision of the court; the whole testimony can not be brought up in order to determine whether the evidence justifies the verdict. P. v. Ah Hop (1878) 1 I. 698.

A bill of exceptions in a criminal case is presumed to contain all the evidence given at the trial bearing upon the point of objection, and it is the duty of the district attorney, in case it does not embrace all the evidence, to suggest an addition to the bill in the trial court; the supreme court can not consider a suggestion made by him in that court that the evidence is not all in the bill. (Dis. op.) T. v. Neilson (1890) 2 I. 614, 23 P. 537.

§ 9012. [7946] Written charges need not be excepted to. When written charges have been presented, given or refused, the questions presented in such charges need not be excepted to or embodied in a bill of exceptions, but the written charges with the indorsements showing the action of the court form part of the record, and any error in the decision of the court thereon may be taken advantage of on appeal, in like manner as if presented in a bill of exceptions. Review of instructions: Instructions given by the court on its own motion must be embodied in a bill of exceptions in order to be reviewed on appeal. P. v. Walter (1871) 1 I. 386; P. v. Biles (1885) 2 I. 114, 6 P. 120; P. v. O'Callaghan (1886) 2 I. 156, 9 P. 414; S. v. Suttles (1907) 13 I. 88, 88 P. 238; S. v. Peck (1908) 14 I. 712, 95 P. 515.

Written charges presented and requested by either the state or the defendant are deemed excepted to and the exceptions need not be embodied in a bill of exceptions. S. v. O'Brien (1907) 13 I. 112, 88 P. 425; S. v. Peck (1908) 14 I. 712, 95 P. 515.

Instructions in writing requested by state and given, or requested by defendant and refused, are deemed excepted to, and need not be preserved in bill of exceptions in order to be reviewable by appellate court. Objections to instructions given by court on own motion must be preserved by bill of exceptions in order to be reviewed by court. These provisions do not appear to have been affected by amendments to criminal code found under '15, cc. 146-150. S. v. Lundhigh (1917) 30 I. 365, 164 P. 690.

§ 9013. Transcript in lieu of bill of exceptions. Any party desiring to procure a record of the evidence and proceedings made during the trial in a criminal action in the district court, for use on appeal to the supreme court, may in lieu of preparing, serving and procuring the settlement of a bill of exceptions, procure a transcript of the evidence and proceedings and exceptions thereto on the trial, or such parts as may be necessary, in the following manner:

1. He shall first procure from the district judge an order directing the reporter to prepare said transcript, or specified portion thereof, which order shall limit the time within which the reporter shall complete and lodge the same. He shall then file said order with the clerk of the district court, and serve a copy thereof upon the reporter, who shall prepare an original and four carbon copies of said transcript. It shall be the duty of the reporter, upon service of said copy of the order, to forthwith, without charge, prepare said transcript and complete the same and lodge the original and copies with the clerk of the district court within the time allowed by said order or within such further time as the district judge may by order, allow. It shall be the duty of the reporter when he can not prepare the transcript within the time allowed by the order of the judge, to procure from the judge additional time for the preparation of such transcript, and a failure of the reporter so to do shall not in any wise impair the rights of the parties to the action. The reporter shall append to the transcript his certificate that the same is a true and correct copy of the testimony and proceedings taken at the trial, or of such part thereof as is designated by the order.

2. Upon receipt of said transcript the clerk shall mark the original and two copies as lodged on the date of said receipt, and shall deliver the remaining copies to the party procuring the same to be made, or to his attorney, and such party or his attorney shall, within 10 days from receipt thereof, serve one copy, together with a notice, particularly designating by page and line any errors or omissions which he claims to be disclosed by the transcript, in the event he claims that there are any such errors or omissions, upon the adverse party, or his attorney, or if there be more than one adverse party appearing by separate attorney in the district court, then on one of such attorneys, in which latter case, however, he shall notify, in the manner that notices are required to be served, the other adverse party or his attorney, of the party on whom he has made such service. The adverse parties, or any of them, shall have 10 days after such service upon them has been completed within which to likewise point out by notice errors in said transcript and to file said notice with the clerk of the court, and serve a copy thereof on the party serving the transcript.

3. At the expiration of the time limited for designating errors, the transcript, with any notice designating errors, shall be transmitted to the judge who tried the cause, by the clerk, on application of either party, and such judge shall forthwith settle the same, notifying the parties by such notice as he deems adequate of the time and place of settlement, and when so settled, said transcript shall have the force and effect of a bill of exceptions duly settled and allowed, and shall be deemed adequate to present for review any ruling appearing therein to have been excepted to, or by statute deemed excepted to, or any question of insufficiency of the evidence which may afterward be properly presented by specification of insufficiency in the brief on appeal. In case no errors in the transcript are designated by either party within the time herein allowed, the transcript shall be deemed settled by the judge, and the certificate of the reporter shall be sufficient evidence of such settlement. The original transcript and copies thereof lodged with the clerk shall be by him marked, filed and retained by him for transmission on appeal to the clerk of the supreme court, as a part of the record on appeal.

4. Exhibits introduced at the trial may be certified to the supreme court by the clerk, as a part of the record on appeal, without incorporating the same in the transcript, or making any copies, unless said exhibits consist of some part of the public records, in which event the same shall be copied into the transcript at the appropriate place by the reporter, or a copy certified by the party having lawful custody of the records may be substituted and transmitted with the exhibits. NEW TRIAL.

§ 9015. [7950] New trial defined. A new trial is a reexamination of the issue in the same court, before another jury, after a verdict has been given. [R. S. § 7950.]

§ 9016. [7951] Effect of new trial. The granting of a new trial places the parties in the same position as if no trial had been had. All the testimony must be produced anew, and the former verdict can not be used or referred to either in evidence or in argument. [R. S. § 7951.]

N. D. Similar: C. Cr. P. § 10916.

§ 9017. [7952] Grounds for new trial. When a verdict has been rendered against the defendant the court may, upon his application, grant a new trial in the following cases only:

1. When the trial has been had in his absence, if the indictment is for a felony.

2. When the jury has received any evidence out of court other than that resulting from a view of the premises.

3. When the jury has separated without leave of the court after retiring to deliberate upon their verdict, or been guilty of any misconduct by which a fair and due consideration of the case has been prevented.

4. When the verdict has been decided by lot or by any means other than a fair expression of opinion on the part of all the jurors.

5. When the court has misdirected the jury in a matter of law, or has erred in the decision of any question of law arising during the course of the trial.

6. When the verdict is contrary to law or evidence.

7. When new evidence is discovered material to the defendant, and which he could not with reasonable diligence have discovered and produced at the trial. When a motion for a new trial is made upon the ground of newly discovered evidence, the defendant must produce at the hearing in support thereof the affidavits of the witnesses by whom such evidence is expected to be given, and if time is required by the defendant to procure such affidavits the court may postpone the hearing of the motion for such length of time as, under all the circumstances of the case, may seem reasonable. [R. S. § 7952.]

N. D. Similar: C. Cr. P. § 10917.

Discretion of court: An order granting the defendant a new trial in a criminal case will be sustained where it appears that the evidence was conflicting, and the order does not state on what grounds it was based, and no error is manifest from the record. S. v. Driskell (1906) 12 I. 245, 85 P. 499.

Where a motion for a new trial in a criminal case is granted the action of the court will be sustained on appeal unless it appears that there was a clear abuse of discretion in granting such new trial. S. v. Barber (1908) 15 I. 96, 96 P. 116.

Grounds: The grounds for a new trial in a criminal case are prescribed by this section and the court can not provide any other ground by rule. S. v. Davis (1898) 6 I. 159, 53 P. 678.

Excusing juror: Error in excusing a juror unchallenged by the state is not one of the grounds for which a new trial may be granted. S. v. McGraw (1899) 6 I. 635, 59 P. 178.

Disqualification of juror: To entitle a person to a new trial on the ground of disqualification of a juror the showing should be clear and conclusive, and the trial court should be clearly satisfied that the defendant has been denied the impartial trial guaranteed to him by the constitution. S. v. Marren (1910) 17 I. 766, 107 P. 993.

Misconduct of jury: It is error to deliver a sealed letter to a juror in a criminal case after the cause has been finally submitted to the jury, but to entitle the juror to the delivery of the letter it should first be submitted to the court and examined by the judge and delivered to counsel for inspection. S. v. Bland (1904) 9 I. 796, 76 P. 780. The giving of a letter to a juror before verdict will not be deemed ground for reversal when the letter was as to trivial personal matters and was not known by the judge to have been delivered to the juror, and is not assigned as ground for a new trial. S. v. Rooke (1904) 10 I. 388, 79 P. 82.

The fact that the jury are furnished with liquor, under the direction of the court, during the trial, and again after they had agreed upon their verdict, is not ground for a new trial, where there is no claim of over-indulgence on the part of any member of the jury. (Modified Bernier v. Anderson, post.) S. v. Reed (1894) 3 I. 754, 35 P. 706; S. v. Corcoran (1900) 7 I. 220, 61 P. 1034.

It is error to permit a juror to use intoxicating liquors during the trial of a case or during the deliberations of the jury unless it is done by permission of the court upon the prescription of a practicing physician. (Modifying S. v. Reed, ante.) Bernier v. Anderson (1902) 8 I. 675, 70 P. 1027.

A new trial will not be granted for alleged misconduct of the jury established merely by ex parte affidavits to the effect that certain jurors, prior to the trial, had made statements that the defendant was guilty, where such jurors are shown by counter affidavits to be men of good standing and deny the making of the statements. S. v. Davis, supra.

Allowing jurors to read newspapers not in evidence, containing statements relative to the case prejudicial to defendant, justifies a new trial. S. v. Tilden (1915) 27 I. 262, 147 P. 1056.

If while viewing the scene of an assault with a deadly weapon the jurors make demonstrations with a broom to test the feasibility of the assault, consult each other on the subject and exchange remarks with strangers, this is misconduct by the jury, for which a new trial may be awarded. S. v. Baker (1916) 28 I. 727, 156 P. 103.

Same: Waiver of objections: But the defendant, with full knowledge of the misconduct of the jury in wrongfully receiving evidence out of court, having chosen not to complain to the court, but rather to take the risk of a verdict in his favor, could not afterward, because the verdict was against him, have a new trial on this ground. Ib.

Separation of jury: The fact that the jurors attend the theater during the progress of a murder trial and sit six in one box and six in another is not such a separation or misconduct of the jury as to require a new trial in the absence of any showing of prejudice. S. v. Levy (1904) 9 I. 483, 75 P. 227.

Separation of the jury prior to the final submission of the case to them is not a specific ground for new trial, and while a showing of such separation in a homicide case establishes prima facie the defendant's right to a new trial, yet the effect of such showing may be overcome by the state's establishing affirmatively that no prejudice resulted from the separation. S. v. Sly (1905) 11 I. 110, 80 P. 1125.

The act of a juror in deliberately separating from his fellows after the submission of the case, explained only by his own uncorroborated affidavit to the effect that he spoke to on one about the case during such separation, is ground for a new trial. S. v. West (1905) 11 I. 157, 81 P. 107.

Newly discovered evidence: A new trial should never be granted on the ground of newly discovered evidence when such evidence is merely cumulative, nor when it was easily within the reach of the defendant, and with reasonable diligence could have been produced at the trial. S. v. Davis, supra; S. v. Fleming (1910) 17 I. 471, 106 P. 305; S. v. Lumpkin, 31 I. 175. 169 P. 939.

A new trial will not be granted on the ground of newly discovered evidence unless it is shown that the introduction of such evidence might change the result of the verdict, and sufficient reason must be shown why such evidence could not have been presented at the former trial. S. v. Bond (1906) 12 I. 424, 86 P. 43.

An application for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence will not be granted unless due diligence is shown, and it is prboable that a different result may follow another trial. S. v. Williams (1906) 12 I. 483, 86 P. 53.

Where a defendant in a criminal case assumes the risk of standing trial, notwithstanding the absence of certain evidence which he deems material and of which he then knows, and makes no application for a continuance to enable him to procure such evidence, he can not procure a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence. S. v. Cook (1907) 13 I. 45, 88 P. 240.

Hearing: Where on motion for new trial in a criminal case the defendant files affidavit that a certain juror, previous to the trial, had stated with reference to the defendant that he ought to be hung, there is such an attack on the veracity of the juror (who had stated on his voir dire that he had expressed no opinion as to the guilt of the defendant) as to authorize the reception of sustaining affidavits on behalf of the state, to the effect that the juror's reputation for truth and veracity was good. S. v. Levy (1904) 9 I. 483, 75 P. 227.

Affidavits of jurors are not admissible to impeach their verdict after the same has been rendered. S. v. Ridgley (1900) 7 I. 292, 62 P. 679.

Counter showing by state: The right of the state to file counter affidavits to an application for a new trial has been frequently recognized. S. v. Fleming, supra.

§ 9018. [7953] Time for application. The application for a new trial may be made before or after judgment; and must be made within 10 days after verdict, unless the court or judge extends the time. [R. S. § 7953.]

Time for application: An application for a new trial must be made within 10 days after verdict unless the time for making the same has been extended by the court or judge; if the application is not so made, an appeal from the order denying a new trial will be dismissed on motion. S. v. Dupuis (1901) 7 I. 614, 65 P. 65; S. v. Rice (1901) 7 I. 762, 66 P. 87; S. v. Davis (1901) 7 I. 776, 65 P. 429; S. v. Davis (1901) 8 I. 115, 66 P. 932.

Sufficiency of application: A notice of intention to apply for a new trial, served on the district attorney and filed with the clerk, is not an application for a new trial. S. v. Smith (1897) 5 I. 291, 48 P. 1060. But where defendant serves and files his notice of intention to move for a new trial and states therein the grounds upon which the application is based, and the trial court and the respective counsel treat such notice as an application for a new trial, the supreme court will so treat it, and will not dismiss the appeal from the order denying a new trial on the ground that formal application for a new trial was not made. S. v. Wright (1906) 12 I. 212, 85 P. 493.

ARTICLE 7.

ARREST OF JUDGMENT.

§ 9019. [7960] Grounds for motion. A motion in arrest of judgment is an application on the part of the defendant that no judgment be rendered on a plea or verdict of guilty, or on a verdict against the defendant on a plea of a former conviction or acquittal. It may be founded on any of the defects in the indictment that are grounds of demurrer, unless the objection to the indictment has been waived by a failure to demur, and must be made before or at the time the defendant is called for judgment. § 9022. [7963] Discharge or detention of defendant. If, from the evidence on the trial, there is reason to believe the defendant guilty, and a new indictment can be framed, upon which he may be convicted, the court may order him to be recommitted to the officer of the proper county, or admitted to bail anew, to answer the new indictment. If the evidence shows him guilty of another offense, he must be committed or held thereon, and in neither case shall the verdict be a bar to another prosecution or indictment. But if no evidence appears sufficient to charge him with any offense he must, if in custody, be discharged; or if admitted to bail, his bail is exonerated; or if money has been deposited instead of bail, it must be refunded to the defendant; and the arrest of judgment shall operate as an acquittal of the charge upon which the indictment was founded. § 9023. [7980] Time for judgment. After a plea or verdict of guilty, or after a verdict against the defendant on the plea of a former conviction or acquittal, if the judgment be not arrested or a new trial granted, the court must appoint a time for pronouncing judgment, which, in cases of felony, must be at least two days after the verdict, if the court intend to remain in session so long; but if not, then at as remote a time as can reasonably be allowed. Effect of sentence not conforming to law: Where a sentence contains provisions unwarranted by law, prescribing a minimum and maximum sentence different from that provided by law, such judgment is not void except as to such unwarranted provisions and should not be interpreted in the light of the law upon which it is based, and the minimum fixed by the statutes should be read into and considered as part of the sentence and mittimus. § 9035. Indeterminate sentence: Maximum and minimum. When any person shall be convicted of a felony, except treason or murder in the first degree, the punishment for which, as prescribed by law, may be imprisonment in the state penitentiary, the court imposing sentence shall not fix a definite term of imprisonment but shall fix a minimum term of imprisonment which shall not be less than the minimum prescribed by law, nor less than six months in any case.

The maximum penalty provided by law shall be the maximum sentence in all cases, except as herein provided, and shall be stated by the judge in passing sentence.

The maximum term of imprisonment shall not exceed the longest term fixed by law for the punishment of the offense of which the person sentenced is convicted, and the minimum term of imprisonment fixed by the court shall not exceed one-half of the maximum term of imprisonment fixed by statute: Provided further, That in all cases when the maximum sentence, in the discretion of the court, may be for life or any number of years, the court imposing the sentence shall fix a maximum sentence. Appellate review: A matter not made a part of the record by statute must be made so by a bill of exceptions in order to be available on appeal. P. v. Ah Hop (1878) 1 I. 698.

On appeal from the judgment alone, no objection or exception may be considered that does not appear from the record or judgment roll, as defined by this section. S. v. Suttles (1907) 13 I. 88, 88 P. 238.

To authorize a review of instructions given by the court upon its own motion, they must be presented to the supreme court by a proper bill of exceptions, either incorporating the instructions given, or the exception, with a proper identification of such instructions, showing that the exception was taken at the time the instructions were given. S. v. Peck (1908) 14 I. 712, 718, 95 P. 515.

Contents of record: Instructions given by the court on its own motion constitute no part of the record and must be embodied in a bill of exceptions. P. v. Walter (1871) 1 I. 386; S. v. Suttles (1907) 13 I. 88, 88 P. 238.

Neither the arraignment nor a copy of the minutes thereof is a part of the record in a criminal action. P. v. Ah Hop, supra.

The record need not show that the officer in charge of the jury was sworn, nor that the jury was admonished at each adjournment; failure to comply with those requirements of the law must be shown by a bill of exceptions. P. v. Waters (1874) 1 I. 560. The record need not show that the defendant was instructed as to his right to challenge an individual juror, as required by § 7826, nor that the jury were admonished at each adjournment of the court, as required by § 7881. S. v. Suttles, supra.

Effect of amendment: The previous rulings of the supreme court—that instructions in writing requested by the state, and given, or requested by the defendant and refused, are deemed excepted to, and the question presented thereby need not be preserved in the bill of exceptions in order to be reviewed by the appellate court; also that objections to instructions given by the court on its own motion must be preserved by bill of exceptions in order to be reviewed—are not affected by the amendment of 1915. S. v. Lundhigh (1917) 30 I. 365, 371, 164 P. 690.

CHAPTER 323.

APPEALS TO THE SUPREME COURT.

ARTICLE 1.

TAKING OF APPEAL.

§ 9066. [8040] Who may appeal. Either party in a criminal action in the district court may appeal to the supreme court, on questions of law alone, as prescribed in this article. [R. S. § 8040.]

Hist. (See Cr. Prac. '64, §§ 468, 469) R. S. § 8040, reen. R. C. ib, reen. C. L. ib.

Comp. leg.—Cal. Similar: Pen. C. 1872, § 1235; Kerr's C. ib.

N. D. Analogous: C. Cr. P. 10989.

Cited: S. v. Reed (1893) 3 I. 554, 32 P. 202.

Scope of review: The supreme court can not upon appeal in a criminal case review the facts to determine whether the verdict is contrary to the evidence, but is confined to the consideration of errors of law. P. v. Ah Hop (1878) 1 I. 698. The evidence may be reviewed only by an appeal from an order denying a new trial. P. v. Pierson (1884) 2 I. 76, 3 P. 688. Errors of law in the admission of evidence may be reviewed but conflicting evidence can not be weighed. U. S. v. Camp (1886) 2 I. 231, 10 P. 226.

§ 9067. [8041] Designation of parties. The party appealing is known as the appellant, and the adverse party as the respondent, but the title of the action is not changed in consequence of the appeal. [R. S. § 8041.]

Comp. leg.—Cal. Same: Pen. C. 1872, § 1236; Kerr's C. ib.

N. D. Identical: C. Cr. P. § 10991.

§ 9068. Appeal by defendant. An appeal may be taken by the defendant:

1. From a final judgment of conviction.
2. From an order denying a motion for a new trial.
3. From any order made after judgment, affecting the substantial rights of the party.

Upon an appeal from a final judgment of conviction, if a reporter's transcript of the evidence appears in the record, the ground that the verdict is contrary to the evidence may be considered and determined to the same extent as on an appeal from an order denying a new trial, Providing, A specification of the particulars in which the evidence is insufficient to sustain the verdict is made in appellant's brief filed with the supreme court. ['15, c. 150, § 1, p. 324.]

Hist. (See Cr. Prac. '64, § 471) R. S. § 8042, reen. R. C. ib; am. '15, c. 150, § 1, p. 324, reen. C. L. ib.

What constitutes a judgment: A court minute reciting that a copy of the justice's docket is ordered stricken from the files, and the motion of the county attorney to dismiss the action is sustained, does not constitute a judgment from which an appeal may be taken. S. v. Barnard (1907) 13 I. 439, 90 P. 1.

The action of the court with reference to bail can not be reviewed upon appeal from the judgment. S. v. Peck (1908) 14 I. 712, 95 P. 515.

Review of evidence: Prior to this and concurrent amendments, the only method of procuring a review of the evidence was upon appeal from an order granting or denying a motion for a new trial. S. v. Lottridge (1916) 29 I. 53, 155 P. 487.

Review of orders: Orders refusing to set aside an indictment and disallowing a demurrer are not appealable, and can be reviewed by the court only on appeal from a final judgment. S. v. Maguire (1917) 31 I. 24, 169 P. 175.

Specification of particulars required: Since this section as amended requires specifications of particulars in which evidence is insufficient to be made in appellant's brief, such questions may not be reviewed by court unless specifications are made. Ib.

§ 9069. [8043] Appeal by state. An appeal may be taken by the state:

1. From a judgment for the defendant on a demurrer to the indictment or information.
2. From an order granting a new trial.
3. From an order arresting judgment.
4. From an order made after judgment affecting the substantial rights of the prosecution.
5. From any ruling of the trial judge during the course of the trial on the receipt or rejection of testimony, and from any ruling of the trial judge on the giving or refusal to give instructions to the jury. ['07, p. 508, § 1.]

Right of appeal: The right of the state to appeal from any decision in favor of the defendant in a criminal action is statutory, and does not exist in any class of cases unless expressly given by statute. This section does not give the state the right to appeal from a judgment of the district court in a criminal action which has been appealed from a probate or justice's court, and which is prosecuted by complaint. S. v. Ridenbaugh (1897) 5 I. 710, 51 P. 750; modified by S. v. Stafford (1914) 26 I. 381, 143 P. 528.

The state has no right of appeal from an order sustaining defendant's plea of once in jeopardy, and other orders specified. S. v. Grady, 31 I. 272, 170 P. 85.

An appeal may be taken by the state under the amendment of '07 from a judgment for defendant on demurrer to the complaint originally filed in the probate court in a case appealed to the district court, the word "information" being held to apply to the first pleading in the inferior court. S. v. Stafford (1914) 26 I. 381, 143 P. 528.

Advising jury to acquit defendant under § 8963 is not subject to review. S. v. Murphy (1916) 29 I. 42, 156 P. 908.

§ 9070. Time for appeal. An appeal from a judgment must be taken within six months after its rendition, and from an order, within 60 days after it is made. [C. L. § 8044.]

§ 9071. [8045] Notice of appeal. An appeal is taken by filing with the clerk of the court in which the judgment or order appealed from is entered or filed, a notice stating the appeal from the same, and serving a copy thereof upon the attorney of the adverse party. [R. S. § 8045.]

Adverse party: When the appeal is perfected under this section, the attorney general becomes the attorney for the state, the adverse party. S. v. Squires (1908) 15 I. 327. 97 P. 411.

§ 9072. [8046] Service of notice. If personal service of the notice can not be made, the judge of the court in which the action was tried, upon proof thereof, may make an order for the publication of the notice in some newspaper for a period not exceeding 30 days; such publication is equivalent to personal service. [8048] Stay of execution. An appeal to the supreme court from a judgment of conviction stays the execution of the judgment in all capital cases, and in all other cases, upon filing with the clerk of the court in which the conviction was had a certificate of the judge of such court, or of a justice of the supreme court, that, in his opinion, there is probable cause for the appeal, but not otherwise. N. D. Similar. C. Cr. P. § 10999.

Probable cause—definition: The phrase "probable cause for the appeal." as used in this section. does not mean that there is a probable reason to suppose the judgment will be reversed. but that the appellant has assigned grounds of error that are open to doubt or honest difference of opinion, and over which rational, reasonable and honest discussion may arise; that the appeal must present some debatable question that is not merely frivolous and vexatious. Re Neil (1906) 12 I. 749, 87 P. 881.

Admission to bail: Admission to bail after conviction is a matter entirely separate and distinct from a certificate of probable cause; while the defendant may not be admitted to bail prior to the issuance of such certificate, yet, on the other hand, a certificate may, and should, properly issue in many cases where the defendant should not be admitted to bail. Ib.

Certificate—When denied: A justice of the supreme court will not grant a certificate of probable cause to stay proceedings pending an appeal from an order denying a new trial, where the motion for a new trial was not made within the time allowed by statute therefor. S. v. Davis (1901) 7 I. 776. 65 P. 429.

§ 9075. [8049] Same: Custody of defendant. If the certificate provided for in the preceding section is filed, the sheriff must, if the defendant be in his custody, upon being served with a copy thereof, keep the defendant in his custody without executing the judgment, and detain him to abide the judgment on appeal. Upon the appeal being taken, the clerk with whom the notice of appeal is filed, must within 40 days thereafter, unless further time is given by the district court from which the appeal is taken, or a judge thereof, or by a member of the supreme court, prepare the record to be used in the supreme court. Such record shall be prepared in accordance with the rules of the supreme court and shall consist of one original and four carbon copies to be certified by the clerk as true and correct. The original copy and two carbon copies so prepared and certified by the clerk shall be at once transmitted by him to the clerk of the supreme court. Two carbon copies of such record or transcript on appeal shall, as soon as prepared and certified by the clerk, be transmitted to the attorney for the appellant, or if there be more than one attorney for the apellant whose name appears upon the notice of appeal, then the said copies shall be transmitted to one of such attorneys and the clerk shall notify by mail the other attorneys for appellant of such fact.

The attorneys for the appellant shall within 10 days after receiving such copies of the transcript on appeal serve one copy thereof upon the attorney for the respondent. In case the state is respondent, such copy shall be served upon the attorney general. Service may be made by mail or personally and proof of service shall be filed with the clerk of the supreme court. The record for appeal from a final judgment of conviction shall consist of copies of the following papers: the notice of appeal; the record, as the same is or shall be provided by section 9040; the reporter's transcript, in case there be one; any bill or bills of exceptions, if any there be, preserving the evidence and proceedings at the trial.

If the appeal be from an order denying a motion for a new trial, or from any other order made after judgment affecting the substantial rights of the party, the record on appeal shall consist of copies of the bill or bills of exceptions preserving the same. Substantial irregularities: Where a transcript on appeal in a criminal case is not certified as required by law and such certificate is not waived the same will be stricken from the files for want of proper certification. S. v. Squires (1908) 15 I. 327, 96 P. 411.

JUDGMENT UPON APPEAL.

§ 9084. [8070] Technical errors disregarded. After hearing the appeal, the court must give judgment without regard to technical errors or defects, or to exceptions which do not affect the substantial rights of the parties. [R. S. § 8070.]

Application: This section is applicable, not only against the defendant, but also against the state, when it urges a mere technical variance by the defendant from statutory requirements of practice, which appears neither to have misled nor prejudiced the rights of the state. S. v. Wright (1906) 12 I. 212, 85 P. 493.

Harmless errors: The following defects or informalities have been held not to affect substantial rights within the meaning of this section: A technical defect in an instruction otherwise unobjectionable. P. v. Barnard (1886) 2 I. 193, 10 P. 30. Charging an accessory as such instead of charging him as principal. T. v. Guthrie (1888) 2 I. 432, 17 P. 39. Improperly sustaining a challenge for implied bias. S. v. Gordon (1897) 5 I. 297, 48 P. 1061. The failure of the record to show the defendant's presence at the rendition of the verdict. S. v. Watkins (1900) 7 I. 35, 59 P. 1106. Improper statements, made by the prosecuting attorney to the jury, which are not actually prejudicial to the defendant. S. v. Rice (1901) 7 I. 762, 66 P. 87. Rejection and admission of evidence not prejudicial. S. v. Gruber (1911) 19 I. 692, 115 P. 1; S. v. Fondren (1913) 24 I. 663, 135 P. 265. Absence of trial judge on view of premises by jury, no objection being made at the time, no actual prejudice arising therefrom. S. v. Moon (1911) 20 I. 202, 117 P. 757, Ann. Cas. 1913A 724.

A new trial should never be granted, notwithstanding some mistake or even misdirection by the judge, provided the revisioning court is satisfied that justice has been done and that upon the evidence no other verdict could properly have been found. S. v. Marren (1910) 17 I. 766, 107 P. 993.

Modification of judgment: Where an indictment fails to sufficiently charge murder in the first degree, but charges murder in the second degree, and there has been a verdict of guilty, and judgment convicting the defendant of murder in the first degree, the supreme court will modify the judgment by reducing the same to murder in the second degree. P. v. O'Callaghan (1886) 2 I. 156, 9 P. 414.

While this section empowers the supreme court to affirm, modify or reverse a case on appeal, yet that court will hesitate to modify a sentence in a criminal case by reducing the term. S. v. Harness (1905) 11 I. 122, 80 P. 1129. But in a later case the supreme court reduced the sentence without passing on the question of its power so to do. S. v. Neil (1907) 13 I. 539, 90 P. 860.

§ 9088. [8074] Discharge of defendant. If a judgment against a defendant is reversed without ordering a new trial, the appellate court must, if he is in custody, direct him to be discharged therefrom; or if on bail, that his bail be exonerated; or if money was deposited instead of bail, that it be refunded to the defendant. 1. As a matter of right, when the appeal is from a judgment imposing a fine only.
2. As a matter of discretion in all other cases. [R. S. § 8104.]

Bail on certificate of probable cause: Admission to bail after conviction is a matter entirely separate and distinct from a certificate of probable cause; while the defendant may not be admitted to bail prior to the issuance of such certificate, yet, on the other hand, a certificate may and should properly issue in many cases where the defendant should not be admitted to bail. Re Neil (1906) 12 I. 749, 87 P. 881.

Discretion of court: Where a defendant who has been sentenced to imprisonment appeals and applies to the trial judge for admission to bail, such application is addressed to the sound legal discretion of such judge or court, and unless it clearly appears that such discretion has been abused, the action of the trial judge or court will not be disturbed or interfered with by the supreme court on application for a writ of habeas corpus. Re Schriber (1911) 19 I. 531, 114 P. 29, 37 L. R. A. (N. S.) 693.

§ 9097. [8105] Nature of bail. If the offense is bailable, the defendant may be admitted to bail before conviction:

1. For his appearance before the magistrate on the examination of the charge, before being held to answer.

2. To appear at the court to which the magistrate is required to return the depositions upon the defendant being held to answer after examination.

3. After indictment, either before the bench warrant is issued for his arrest or upon any order of the court committing him or enlarging the amount of bail, or upon his being surrendered by his bail to answer the indictment in the court in which it is found, or to which it may be transferred for trial.

After conviction, and upon an appeal:

1. If the appeal is from a judgment imposing a fine only, on the undertaking of bail, that he will pay the same, or such part of it as the appellate court may direct, if the judgment is affirmed, modified, or the appeal is dismissed.

2. If judgment of imprisonment has been given, that he will surrender himself in execution of the judgment, upon its being affirmed or modified, or upon the appeal being dismissed; or that in case the judgment be reversed, and that the cause be remanded for a new trial, that he will appear in the court to which said cause may be remanded, and submit himself to the orders and process thereof. Nonliability on bond: Where a bail bond has been duly executed prior to preliminary examination, to obtain the release of one charged with crime, and the district court upon motion to quash the information orders the case resubmitted to a committing magistrate, and the prosecuting attorney files a new complaint before such magistrate, the latter has no authority to call upon the sureties to produce the body of the defendant to answer the new charge. or to declare the bond forfeited by reason of their failure to do so. 2. APPEALS TO THE DISTRICT COURT.

Application to police courts: Under § 3894 this article also governs appeals from police court. S. v. Hosford (1915) 27 I. 185, 147 P. 286.

§ 9263. [8320] Defendant may appeal. The defendant may appeal to the district court of the county from any judgment of conviction rendered in a criminal action by a probate or justice's court. [R. S. § 8320.]

Hist. R. S. § 8320, reen. R. C. ib., reen. C. L. ib.

N. D. Analogous: Jus. C. § 9158.

Effect of appeal: Where the case has been appealed to the district court the issuance of a writ of review by that court to the inferior court is a nullity. S. v. Hosford (1915) 27 I. 185, 147 P. 286.

§ 9264. [8321] Notice of appeal. A defendant intending to appeal must give notice of his intention to do so at the time of the trial or rendition of the judgment, and must within 10 days after the rendition and entry of the judgment, file with the judge or justice of the court wherein the conviction was had, and serve on the prosecuting attorney of the county, a notice of appeal, entitled in the action, setting forth the character of the judgment, and the intention of the defendant to appeal therefrom to the district court. N. D. Analogous: Jus. C. § 9174.

Cited: S. v. Hosford (1915) 27 I. 185, 147 P. 286.

Necessity of notice: The failure to give notice of intention to appeal, as required by this section, and the failure of the record to show that such notice was given, is not ground for a dismissal of the appeal by the dsitrict court. S. v. Barnard (1907) 13 I. 439, 90 P. 1.

The giving of notice of appeal in the manner provided by this section is necessary to the jurisdiction of the appellate court. S. v. Leeper (1917) 30 I. 534, 165 P. 997.

Sufficiency of notice: A notice of appeal which gives the title of the court and cause, and the date on which the judgment was entered, and states that the judgment was in favor of the state and against the defendant, and that he appeals from the judgment and the whole thereof, sufficiently states the "character of the judgment" as required by this section. S. v. Barnard, supra.

A notice of appeal need not be signed; the lack of a signature thereto of the appellant or of his attorney is a formal. rather than a jurisdictional, defect, and may be waived; and such defect is waived by a written acceptance of service. S. v. Leeper, supra.

Filing and service: It is necessary both to file and serve the notice of appeal within the time prescribed and the transcript of proceedings on appeal must show affirmatively both the filing and service. S. v. Cowen (1916) 29 I. 783, 162 P. 674.

§ 9265. [8322] Undertaking for appearance of witnesses. When notice of intention to appeal is given by the defendant as provided in the last section, the judge or justice may take from each of the material witnesses examined before him on the part of the people, a written undertaking, with or without sureties, to the effect that he will appear and testify in the district court upon the appeal, or that he will forfeit the sum of $500, as provided in case of commitment upon preliminary examination, or if the witness is unable to procure sureties he may be conditionally examined as there provided. § 9267. [8324] Bail pending appeal. The party appealing may, at any time thereafter, if he desires to be released from custody during the pendency of the appeal, or desires a stay of proceedings under the judgment until the appeal be disposed of, enter into a recognizance, with two sufficient sureties to be approved by the judge or justice, in an amount to be fixed by the judge or justice, but not exceeding $500 in any case, for the payment of any judgment, fine and costs that may be awarded against him on the appeal, and that he will faithfully prosecute the same and render himself in execution of any judgment or order rendered or entered against him in the district court. Nature of liability: Defendant's liability for fine and costs upon appeal from justice or probate court where a bond is given under this section is a civil liability. The district court has no power to enter an alternative judgment of imprisonment against the defendant in case of his failure to pay fine and costs. Re Lucas (1909) 17 I. 167, 104 P. 657; Re Walton (1909) 17 I. 171, 104 P. 659.

Failure to give bond: Failure to file the bond herein provided results only in failure to stay execution of judgment but does not defeat the jurisdiction of the district court nor render the appeal subject to dismissal. S. v. Leeper (1917) 30 I. 534, 165 P. 997.

§ 9268. [8325] Trial on appeal. The clerk of the district court must file the papers received, and enter the action on the calendar in its order with other criminal cases, and the same must be tried anew in the district court at the next term thereof, unless for good cause the same be continued. Trial de novo on all issues: Under the provisions of this section the case must be tried anew, or de novo. The case is there for a new trial on every point and question that was raised or might have been raised in the justice's or probate court. The motions and demurrers decided by the justice or probate court must be heard by the district court, provided either the state or the defendant cares to present them, or the defendant may first demur to the complaint in the district court. Form of judgment: Under a stay of proceedings as provided by § 9267, after a conviction in the lower court, and after conviction in the district court, under the provisions of this section, judgment for a fine or costs, or both fine and costs against defendant and his sureties, should be entered as in a civil action. The district court has no jurisdiction to impose an alternative judgment of imprisonment against defendant in case he fail to pay the fine or costs, or both fine and costs. Re Lucas, supra. Re Walton, supra.

The district court may enter an independent sentence of imprisonment against defendant convicted on appeal, in addition to fine and costs, where same is allowed as a part of the penalty for the specific offense. Ib.

In such cases the court or judge thereof, at the time the application is made therefor, shall order a subjoena to issue to such of said witnesses as the court or judge thereof may deem material for the state or defendant, and the costs incurred by the process, and the fees and mileage of such witnesses, shall be paid in the same manner that the costs and fees of other witnesses are paid. Nature of remedy: Habeas corpus can not be resorted to as an appellate remedy, or for the purpose of reviewing or correcting errors. Re Davis (1913) 23 I. 473, 130 P. 786.

Habeas corpus is a collateral remedy, and in an assault upon the judgment of a court, nothing to the contrary appearing in the record, it will be presumed that all proceedings were according to law. Ex parte Allen (1918) 31 I. 295, 170 P. 921.

Suspension of habeas corpus: On an application for habeas corpus the truth of recitals of alleged facts in a proclamation issued by the governor proclaiming a county to be in a state of insurrection and rebellion, will not be reviewed. Re Boyle (1899) 6 I. 609, 57 P. 706, 96 A. S. R. 286, 45 L. R. A. 832.

Grounds for writ: Improper conduct on the part of the justice of the peace or of the county attorney at a preliminary examination is not ground for habeas corpus unless it results in illegal restraint of the accused. Re Green (1900) 7 I. 94, 60 P. 82.

One held under process duly and regularly issued by a court of competent jurisdiction after extradition from a foreign state will be remanded to custody notwithstanding alleged irregularity in the extradition proceedings. The right to the guardianship of an infant can not be tried on habeas corpus. Andrino v. Yates (1906) 12 I. 618, 87 P. 787.

Custody of infant: Proceedings by habeas corpus to obtain the custody of a minor child are of an equitable nature in which the courts are vested with a large measure of discretion, and may consider the best interests of the child and its wishes in the matter. Ib.

The right of the parent to the custody of an infant may be presented and determined upon a habeas corpus proceeding. Allen v. Williams (1918) 31 I. 309, 171 P. 493.

1. That the person in whose behalf the writ is applied for is imprisoned or restrained of his liberty, the officer or person by whom he is so confined or restrained, and the place where, naming all the parties if they are known, or describing them if they are not known.

2. If the imprisonment is alleged to be illegal the petition must also state in what the alleged illegality consists.

In habeas corpus proceedings where a petitioner is detained by virtue of a commitment the court has no authority to go back of the commitment or process on which the prisoner is held and examine the sufficiency of a complaint upon which the prisoner was tried, or the validity and regularity of a warrant that was issued thereon. Insufficiency of preliminary examination: The prisoner will not be discharged on habeas corpus where the depositions establish that a crime has been committed, and the probability of the prisoner's being guilty thereof sufficiently appears in the depositions to warrant the magistrate to hold the prisoner. Re Levy (1901) 8 I. 53, 66 P. 806.

In a preliminary examination, the state is not required to establish the guilt of the petitioner beyond a reasonable doubt, and the phrase "reasonable or probable cause" is not equivalent to the phrase "beyond a reasonable doubt." By "reasonable or probable cause" is meant such evidence as would lead a reasonable person to believe that the accused party has probably or likely committed the offense charged. Jurisdiction of demanding and surrendering state: The motives which actuate the governor of a state to issue his warrant for the rendition of a prisoner on extradition are not proper subjects of judicial inquiry, since jurisdiction to take the action complained of is the test and the jurisdictional facts are subject to review by the federal courts of the surrendering state where application is made to such courts before the demanding state acquires jurisdiction of the person of the accused. In interstate extradition the prisoner is held under the extradition process only until such time as he reaches the jurisdiction of the demanding state, and he is thenceforth held under the process issued out of the courts of that state; hence, there is no federal question involved in his detention. PART V. GENERAL CODE PROVISIONS.

TITLE LXIII.

Hist. The first section of this title in Compiled Laws declared an emergency in the enactment of that code; it has been omitted as temporary. The enactment of Compiled Laws was approved Jan. 25, 1919.

Part V of Compiled Laws, entitled as above, "General Code Provisions," is not applicable to Compiled Statutes as a code, since no formal enactment of Compiled Statutes as such has been made. It is inserted in this compilation as referring only to Compiled Laws, but an additional section (§ 9459) has been added to embrace the local and special laws enacted at the 1919 session.

CHAPTER 338.

CONSTRUCTION OF STATUTES.

§ 9443. [3] Codes not retroactive. No part of these compiled laws is retroactive, unless expressly so declared. [R. S. § 3.]

Hist. C. C. P. '81, § 2, R. S. § 3, reen. R. C. ib., reen. C. L. 500:3.

Comp. leg.—Cal. Same: Pol. C. 1872, § 3; Kerr's C. ib.

Intention: If the language clearly refers to the past as well as to the future, then the intent to make the law retroactive is expressly declared within the meaning of this section. The express words "this statute is to be deemed retroactive" are not necessary. Peavy v. McCombs (1914) 26 I. 143, 140 P. 965.

When validity dependent on nonretroactive effect: The general rule that all statutes are to be so construed, if possible, as to be valid, requires that the statute shall never be given a retrospective operation, when to do so would render it unconstitutional, and the words of the statute admit of any other construction. Lawrence v. Defenbach (1912) 23 I. 78, 128 P. 81.

§ 9444. [4] Codes liberally construed. The rule of the common law that statutes in derogation thereof are to be strictly construed, has no application to these compiled laws. The compiled laws establish the law of this state respecting the subjects to which they relate, and their provisions and all proceedings under them are to be liberally construed, with a view to effect their objects and to promote justice. [R. S. § 4.]

Words without technical meaning: A statute written in the plain and ordinary language in common every-day use, dealing with a subject that is neither technical nor scientific, should be construed as the ordinary reading public would read and understand it. § 9457. [17] General repeal of existing law. No statute law is continued in force because it is consistent with the provisions of the compiled laws on the same subject, but in all cases provided for therein all statute laws heretofore in force in this state, whether consistent

§ 9460. [18] Common law in force. The common law of England, so far as it is not repugnant to, or inconsistent with, the constitution or laws of the United States, in all cases not provided for in these compiled laws, is the rule of decision in all courts of this state. [R. S. § 18.]

Champerty and maintenance: The common law rule of champerty and maintenance is not in force in this state. Merchants' Protective Assn. v. Jacobsen (1912) 22 I. 636, 127 P. 315.

Inheritance by alien: The common law rule that an alien had no inheritable blood and could not claim through an intestate has been modified in this state by § 7805. Connolly v. Reed (1912) 22 I. 29, 125 P. 213.

Riparian rights: The doctrine of riparian rights is a part of the common law and consequently a part of the law of this state. (Dis. op.) Drake v. Earhart (1890) 2 I. 750, 23 P. 541.

A riparian owner upon the streams of this state, both navigable and non-navigable, takes to the thread of the stream, subject, however, to an easement for the use of the public. Johnson v. Johnson (1908) 14 I. 561, 95 P. 499, 24 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1240.

The common law doctrine of riparian rights in so far as those rights conflict with the right of an appropriator of the waters of a stream, is repugnant to, and in conflict with, the constitution and statutes of this state, and to that extent has been abrogated thereby. Hutchinson v. Watson Slough Ditch Co. (1909) 16 I. 484, 101 P. 1059, 133 A. S. R. 125.

This section only adopts so much of the common law as is applicable to the conditions of this state. The English doctrine of riparian rights on navigable streams has been repeatedly held not applicable to this country. N. P. Ry. Co. v. Hirzel (1916) 29 I. 438, 161 P. 854.

§ 9461. Prior legislation repealed. All general acts and parts and clauses of acts of a general nature passed prior to the fifteenth session of the state legislature, are hereby repealed, and these compiled laws are in force in lieu thereof; but such repeal does not affect any act done, or any right accruing or acrued, or any suit or proceeding had or commenced in any civil cause before the said repeal takes effect, but all rights and liabilities under said repealed acts continue, in the same manner as if said repeal had not been made.
